

Why I lead

One page, honestly written, beats three pages of what you think we want to hear. There are no wrong answers – this is the starting point for your Personal Leadership Plan on Day 1.

Why did I become a leader – and why do I stay one?

The real reason, not the job-advert reason.

What do I want my team to say about me a year from now?

Imagine them talking honestly, and you're not in the room.

The best leader I ever worked for – what did they actually do?

Behaviours you could see, not qualities. What would I copy?

Where does leading feel hardest for me right now?

The situation you'd most like this programme to help with.

Three real situations

Write down three real workplace situations you'd like to work through – a conversation you're avoiding, a standard being tested, a team member you can't reach, a recurring problem. Facts only, no names needed. These become your live practice material on all three workshop days.

Situation 1

What's happening? Who's involved (roles, not names)? What have you tried?

PRINCIPLE(S) MOST AT PLAY

Situation 2

What's happening? Who's involved? What have you tried?

PRINCIPLE(S) MOST AT PLAY

Situation 3

What's happening? Who's involved? What have you tried?

PRINCIPLE(S) MOST AT PLAY

The 10 principles: 1 Respectfully challenge each other · 2 Listen first to understand · 3 Set clear expectations · 4 Use data and stick to the facts · 5 Focus on the process, not the person · 6 Ensure quality at source · 7 Be prepared and look ahead · 8 Provide structured feedback · 9 Understand the goal · 10 Create what the customer values
